DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-2 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The limitation: “transport format information is reduced by mapping one or more of such information into a single format information” was not described in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shiu et al (6,624,767).

Regarding claims 1-2, Shiu disclosed a method comprising receiving packet data units in a buffer; concatenating a plurality of packet data units to produce a transport block set; coding the transport block set to a coded block; rate matching the coded block to form coded sub-blocks, the coded sub-block being subject to additional processing; interleaving at least the coded sub-block; and time-multiplexing the rate-matched coded sub-blocks into a coded shared transport channel (see abstract; figure 2A; col. 4, line 8-col. 5, line 8). Shiu does not specifically disclose, “such that transport format information is reduced by mapping one or more of such information into a single format information”. However, it is well known that when one or more information are multiplexed into a single format information, the information is reduced because, for example, the routing information for each information packet (one or more of such information) will be replaced by a single multiplexed routing information. Note that some information in the header of the one or more information are useless in the single format information (multiplexed information) and will be dropped.

Art Unit: 2661

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 2/4/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The applicant argued that the present invention include time-multiplexing the rate-matched code blocks into a coded shared transport channel such that transport format information is reduced by mapping one or more of such information into a single format information. Such a technique of mapping transport format information into single format information is simply not disclosed by the Shiu. This argument is not persuasive because Shiu clearly teaches “time-multiplexing the rate-matched code blocks into a coded shared transport channel” as shown in figure 2A step 232. The limitation “such that transport format information is reduced by mapping one or more of such information into a single format information" is explained in previous paragraph.
